ATTACHMENT TO NOTICE OF ALLOWABILITY, PAPER #2

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The Examiner has carefully considered independent claims 1, 15, whose respective "method" and "apparatus" relate to the generation of "a multi-lingual presentation accessed from an Internet network, wherein a plurality of visual objects" are "associated with an audio recording in a language selected from predetermined languages". More specifically, the independent claims call for a "control file" to contain "variables being defined" "previously to said presentation". When considered as a whole, the claimed invention is not taught nor suggested by the prior art now made of record (see attached form PTO-892).

Looking to the best prior art of record, it was certainly known in the art at the time of applicant's invention to handle the case of differing languages in a computer interface, as seen in the US Patent family of Rettig et al. (US #6,252,589 B1) and Miller et al. (US #6,717,588 B1), in which resources are called by an operating system according to a specific language. In a similar way, Malcolm (US #5,416,903) and Miller et al. (US #5,835,768) are concerned with user interface presentation on the basis of specific language requirements of a locale. In these settings, the claimed "control file" having "previously" "defined" "variables" is suggested.

However, the above-mentioned prior art of record does not teach or suggest applicability to "a multi-lingual presentation" with "associated" "visual objects" and an "audio recording", to the extent that such a "presentation" can be interpreted. They are instead oriented towards producing an interface that is uniformly adapted in its content, typically textual, and not the synchronized "presentation" of applicant's claimed invention, this being "accessed from an Internet network".

This is not to say that significant prior art teachings do not exist for the notion of language-specific "Internet" "presentations" in general. The IBM Research Disclosure of March 1998 (Vol 41, No. 407) specifically calls for a web browser that has locale-oriented access to localized HTML pages. Also please note that Burget (US #6,557,005 B1) and Fidler (US #2003/0191817 A1) work with selected language text insertions into various forms of web-based pages.

However, even in these "Internet network" "presentation" schemes, the form of "presentation" in which "visual objects" <sup>have</sup> ~~and~~ "associated" "audio recording" output, found in the present claims 1, 15, is not fairly taught nor suggested. RB

As to the matter of "audio recording" and "visual objects" appearing in the "Internet" environment per se, the Examiner does note that disclosures such as Christensen et al. (US #6,381,567 B1) set forth as known the basic concept of Hyper-media, in which the integration of graphics, sound, video, or any combination may appear in conjunction with a language-specific web browser application.

But while a "presentation" incorporating Christensen et al.'s sound and graphics may be generally supported by prior art browser set-ups, this prior art does not fairly teach nor suggest the specific support of "an audio recording in a language selected from predetermined languages" for the association, via an initial framework in which a "control file having the variables defining the parameters of a presentation" is originated, "previously to said presentation".

2. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
